NEWS

If you've been getting some strange emails lately . . .

I decided some months ago to have a web-site. I wanted to be able to talk to the people who were interested in hearing from me and give them news about what I was up to as an author. So I called an expert – Jeff at www.slypigpro.com . His e-mail, by the way, is info@slypigpro.com . I got his help and my site was soon up and running at www.dtmann.com I put a user registration form on the front page and lo and behold, I had a hundred registrations before I knew it! A while later I learned a new term – “registration spam”.

Out of my 100 registrations 2 were real people. Apparently there are people with software that targets websites with no restrictions for people who register and automatically fills in registration forms with fake names and emails. Bottom line – I now have registration protection but I sent out an email to all real and fake users and asked for response, because that's one thing the automatic spammer can't do.

To those of you who responded and decided to stay on the list, thank you. I hope you enjoy the newsletters and other info from the site. Debbie (DT Mann)

Humor

A friend of mine has given up social media for the year and is trying to make friends outside Facebook while applying the same principles. Every day, she walks down the street and tells passers-by what she's eaten, how she feels, what she did the night before, and what she will do tomorrow. Then she gives them pictures of her family, her dog, and her gardening. She also listens to their conversations and tells them she loves them. And it works. She already has three people following her—two police officers and a psychiatrist.

Rikki Reagan wants no part of men thanks to her drunken father. He makes her feel like a nothing and a nobody. He forces her mother to run away and when she can, Rikki does too. Her self image is so low that when she meets Steven Legend, a man who arouses her interest for the first time, and because she is a virgin, she offers to pay him to have sex with her. Conflict, danger, plenty of love and a story that will evoke empathy from every reader, That's Legend and a Photographer but it's not the end for Steven and Rikki.

The first . . . Officially that is!

At last! After dealing with internet spam, computer glitches and end user errors, the first official issue of D T Mann News is out. I'll try to keep it interesting for everyone with articles, jokes, even the occasional bit of weirdness written by my husband, Dave. If you have something to contribute: jokes, birth or wedding announcements, congratulatory articles – virtually anything of interest, please send it to me at dlehman2@cogeco.ca. And please, if you like this newsletter, tell your friends about it and get them to register at www.dtmann.com , oh and maybe buy one of my books. Thanks and enjoy.

Proud Nonna

I want to take just a moment to brag about my granddaughter, Cara. I've always felt she was a brilliant artist and, apparently, I'm not the only one. A piece of her artwork has been selected to be displayed at the parliament buildings in Ottawa. Congrats Cara.

RIP Antoine

So sorry to hear of the death of Antoine Dominique "Fats" Domino Jr (February 26, 1928 – October 24, 2017)

Those of us who were growing up in the 50s and 60s will never forget: Blueberry Hill, Whole Lotta lovin', Ain't That A Shame, Walkin' to New Orleans, I'm Walkin', Blue Monday, I'm In Love Again, and many others

Author Page

I now have my own author page on amazon . If you want to take a look it's here www.amazon.com/author/dtmann
